

Share Play

Sharing play with children helps them to become aware of others.

It helps children to become aware of their own communication and that it has worth.

It can help them become aware of cause and effect and help them build early skills for communication.

Watch a child carefully while they play. Sit near them and start to copy what they do or any sounds they make.

If a child takes notice of you ( they may pause what they are doing or look at you), praise good looking, good playing or good listening.

